BEAUTIFUL UPON THE MOUNTAINS

1860, in Provo, by Jonathan Duke, at Robert Duke's home. They made their home in Provo a short time and then returned to Heber, where they built a home—humble indeed, with a dirt floor and dirt roof. It was located at First West and Third North Sts. The house, remodeled, still stands today and is owned by Jay Jacobson.

As their family increased so did their material means. After 10 children were born to them, they moved to a home on Main Street at Second South, where the library now stands. Here two more children were born.

at Second South, where the library now stands. Here two more children were born. Their children were: Isaac Jr., Elisha, Rachel, Margaret, John, Elizabeth, William, Thomas, Joseph, Hyrum, Francis and LuIn 1867, with four small children, they went to Salt Lake and were sealed in the Endowment House.

Sarah Cummings, like many of her day, Sarah Cummings, like many of her day, learned to shear sheep, wash and cord wool, spin into cloth and make the cloth into clothes. She did sewing for others besides her own family, and helped make burial clothes and did much tailoring, mainly men's suits. In the early years of her marriage she spent many hours gleaning in the wheat fields.

As times became better she was encouraged by her husband to take provisions to less fortunate families. They were especially kind to families whose fathers were on mis-

Throughout her life she was an active Throughout her Lhurch. In 1892 she was chosen first counselor to Anna R. Duke in the Stake YWMIA. On June 12, 1895, she was chosen president of Heber West Ward Relief Society, and on September 23, 1895, she took the place of Mary Daybell as second counselor to Emma Brown in the Stake Relief Society.

The later years of her life were marked by a prolonged illness. Before her death, December 7, 1897, she had been confined to her bed 18 months. She was 55 years old.
